

Rosemary Wins Over Bassano in Sunday Game

Capitalizing on local errors, Rosemary Baseballers rallied strongly in the ninth inning to break a 5-4 tie and win handily 9-5. Both teams played fine ball despite the extreme heat of the Sunday sun. Rosemary, telling on the Rosemary mound used a sweeping out to good advantage. Tuffnut was on the receiving end. Young Bob Simmons played a stellar game coming in on many occasions to make good catches at short stop.

Charlie Connolly, local pitcher, had plenty on the ball, but unfortunately failed to stop the Rosemary bat from booming out a merry ninth inning tune. Rookie catcher, Jim McElroy, showed plenty of ability behind the bat and should be continued to progress as rapidly as he has, Bassano will have in this boy the true fire catcher.

Thus the locals have two losses against one win in league play. The team next meets Macleod at the backwaters on Sunday.

Gem Stampede To Be Staged Wed., Aug. 2nd.

Fine Bucking and Racing Program
Being Arranged for Celebration.

All roads will lead to Gem on Wednesday, August 2nd, when the Annual Association Stampede will take place.

Officials of the Stampede have done everything possible this year to make it the real thing—the closest thing to the big Calgary Show. Even some of the broncs that have been throwing the top-drawers from all parts of the continent, high, wide and handsome in Calgary, will be there. Walter Peake's horses seem to have the meekest disposition, as well as the wiry ability, that give cowboys that "feeling I'm falling" attitude. This bucking event has been in a way anticipated that each year more and more folk to see the horses and riders perform in a most conveniently situated arena.

Calf roping will feature some of the most capable boys in the game today. The pioneer spirit of this rodeo takes people back to the time when the cowboys were actually tending the dogies over the range.

A full card of athletic events and horse races have also been scheduled but more detailed information will be given next week.

To wind up festivities, a monster stampede dance will be held in the hall with a real peppy orchestra on hand to swing it all down, for those enthusiastic dancers who are present.

The report of the Secretary showed that the earnings of the hospital for June amounted to $17,700.00, and the expenses $11,529.41.

A large number of delinquent debtors was reported by the Secretary and it will be decided at the next meeting what action to take to enforce collection of them.

ROSEMARY HOME
Rosemary—Last week during a short electrical storm, lightning struck the chimney of Mrs. Zacharias' home. Bricks were thrown for yards. The ceiling was torn out of one of the bedrooms of the house. It was very fortunate that there was no one in the house at the time.

"CANADA CALLING" IN BRITAIN

Typical of scenes witnessed at countless one of the principal cities in Britain these days is the above photograph showing Royal schoolboys in training take a theatre at Reading, England, to see a special screening of films provided by the Dominion Government. One of the many activities of the "Canada Calling" campaign, the films depict farm, fishing and industrial scenes which emphasize the importance of Canada as the food basket for the United Kingdom. The campaign, which covers the major population centres in Britain, is being conducted by the Dominion Government's Department of Trade and Commerce. Regarded as one of the most successfully planned efforts ever launched by a British Dominion, this trade crusade also embraces a series of localized drives and extensive newspaper advertising and marketing operations. In addition, it is supplemented by lectures to school women's clubs, domestic science classes and other organizations, and has enlisted the support of thousands of merchants who are giving special displays of Canadian products.

'Buster', Zoo Seal Recaptured Here After Struggle

Buster, 150 pound Seal of the Calgary Zoo, seemingly didn't appreciate his new home after arriving from California last week, so escaped and journeyed some 50 miles down the Bow River to the Bassano dam. The sleek, greyish-brown creature was first spotted by Cluny bathers.

It took local men and B.I.O. employees some 15 hours to recapture the seal after being seen Wednesday evening by Earl Varty, local farmer, who was at the time crossing the dam. The canal gates were open, causing the seal to enter the more confined waters. When it was reported that the seal had been spotted, many local "seal hunters" began the search. So enthusiastic were some that they stayed out all night. Shortly after dawn Tom Balnes, Curator, and his assistant Webber, arrived on the scene. From then till the actual capture about 3 p.m. Buster was fed fish, and continually kept on the move. Dip nets and lassos were used, but to no avail. Although E. Marquardt nearly did get trick with a net. H. Heber, C. Brown, and J. Hedlock chased Buster in a boat but the results could only be summed by saying "it tired the men rather than the seal." It was finally trapped in the area of No. 1 headgate, with 7 or 8 feet of water. A box was constructed of canvas and wire, opened at one end and half it top. The wanderlust of the seal ended his pleasure trip by plunging into the trap in quest of fish that had been thrown in. By means of ropes, the captors lifted the cage and Buster out of the water.

Mr. Balnes immediately started for the city, escorting the "bad boy of the zoo" home. Reports in the daily papers that the intelligent seal again sought freedom on Sunday of this week. After climbing on his performing table he attempted to jump through the bars over the wire netting. Finding this difficult, he plunged into the pool, and then again attempted it. This time he proved successful, but a feminine onlooker's scream brought keeper Balnes.

Since so many took part in the capture of the seal it would be quite impossible to enumerate all. However it will go down as being worth while on the part of local citizens, official recognition of which has been sent out by Dr. O. H. Patrick, President of the Zoo Society.

These adjuncts are instructed to make the examinations accompanied by the farmer on the land, and to use every care in arriving at a most satisfactory to the farmer. They are furnished with forms which the farmer is required to sign accepting the adjustment agreed upon, and the farmer is requested to note carefully the adjustment allowed before signing.

Do You Recall?

From the Bassano Mail, July 21st, 1927

Gem Stampede was scheduled to be held July 27th. Red Bobs went grown on the White farm measured four feet one inch in height. Crops in the Hussar district were the best to be seen in years, and very heavy yields were expected. Preparations were being made to lay a new sidewalk from the corner of McEwen's Store south to the lane, the work to be finished to the station the following year.

Last Wednesday, dedication services were held at the grounds for the new Latter-day Saints Church. President and Mrs. Palmer were from Lehighridge for the occasion. The first solo was turned with a large number of people gathered on hand to witness the affair.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Gellings and family returned Sunday from their trip to the United States.

The Ankrum and Stathel families spent Sunday picnicking at the backwaters.

Miss Irene Adams is spending a few days at the home of her sister Mrs. N. Nixon in Dufferin.

Among those who went berry-picking on Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. A. Narm and Justin and Mr. and Mrs. G. Peterson.

Friends of Miss Jean Eastman will be delighted to hear that she is enjoying her vacation trip through the States.

Curling Club to Sponsor Dance

Dancers in the Bassano district are reminded that there will be a dance in the Curling Ring Building, Bassano, on Friday evening next, July 21st. The event will be sponsored by the Bassano Curling Club.

Mrs. Trainor and her Calgary Hill-Mills orchestra will supply the music for this dance. (This orchestra has played at a series of dances in Bassano in recent months, and has proven very successful on each occasion. This occasion will be no exception, and a real good time is assured to all who are fortunate in being present.)

This is the first dance the Curling Club has sponsored in a number of years, and support of all citizens in the district is solicited. Funds go to the Curling Club, who annually provide entertainment for all sport fans during the winter months. Don't forget the date, next Friday evening, July 21st.

ROYAL MICROPHONE AT STAMPEDE STUDIO

An added attraction at the special CPAC Studio in the Calgary exhibition and stampede is a gold-plated microphone used by Their Majesties during their recent tour of Canada and the United States. There were three of these microphones in all, one known to radio men as a "sailor's" and the other two "Caribbees." They were all gold plated and were used exclusively by Their Majesties. Canadian Broadcasting Corporation was kind enough to loan one of them for display on this occasion.

THE CANADIAN WEEKLIES

Next Friday and Saturday the Ontario and Quebec divisions of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association meet at Ottawa. The annual gathering is a reminder of the fine part played by the weekly press in Canadian life and affairs, of its splendid contribution to the areas which it serves. It performs a service which some city people are apt to underestimate. They underestimate, too, perhaps, the importance of the smaller communities in which many of the weeklies are published. These communities supply the nation with more than their share of its foremost men and women leaders in the professions, in business life, in public life. In journalism, as in other spheres of activity, many important posts are held by men who had their early training on a weekly newspaper.

There is a reason for this. The weeklies are closer to their field and to the life of the people than any metropolitan newspaper can hope to be. Their writers know personally many of those about whom they write. They have their fingers upon the community pulse. They are in touch with the thought and manner of life of the men and women of their constituencies to a degree which in a larger constituency is impossible. And they learn to be accurate. If there is a mistake in name or initials or in the facts about a local gathering, they soon hear about it. So the accuracy of a weekly newspaper is invaluable in its relation to the realities of human experience and the importance of faithful reporting.

A metropolitan newspaper cultivates its field "extensively" by weeklies. The former reaches out into far corners of the world for news of what is happening there. The latter concentrates on its own district in a way which a city paper cannot possibly do. Instead of forcing its respondents, it has close-to-home correspondents—country correspondents who are usually called "man and the weekly budget of news from the round about. These rural part-time newspapermen and newspaperwomen make a genuine contribution to the paper which they serve, and on them serve it for a lifetime. They give it a touch which the metropolitan press cannot provide.

But lifetime service is not a monopoly of country correspondents. There are weeklies which have been under the management of one man for as long as most people can remember. They have taken on his personality, and he and his paper are one in the eyes of the community. In some cases, indeed, a paper has been handed down from father to son, and in turn to the son's son, until it is regarded not only as the product of an individual, but as the product of a family. On the other hand there are weeklies which have been taken over by men trained on city dailies and some of these have made a conspicuous success. There is a fine reciprocity in it all: the weeklies making their contribution of personnel to the city papers and the city papers to the weeklies.

One of the finest men which weekly journalism ever gave to Toronto or to any other city was the late Joseph P. Clark, editor of The Star—and on this paper there are many others who have had their training in smaller centers. The publisher himself graduated from a weekly, and was secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Press Association when it included both dailies and weeklies. Mr. Clark was at one time editor of a weekly paper in Pictou, and, as the Downsville Statement remarks, "never lost his delight in the incidents of town and country life." This was well known to those about him. His heart was great enough to include all, but in his last analysis its warmest heart was for the small places and the small papers.

It is fitting therefore, that a trophy which the publisher of The Star is donating to the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association for annual competition should be a Joseph P. Clark memorial, and so named. It is to be awarded to the best all-round newspaper published in a town or village of 1,500 or less. And this year it will be presented by the late Mr. Clark's talented son, Mr. Gregory Clark. It is a symbol not only of the late Mr. Clark's affection for the brethren of the weeklies, but of the Star's continued appreciation of their splendid service to their community and to Canada.—Toronto Daily Star.

No Monthly Dividend

The Tribune is forced this time to agree with Mr. Aberhart that Brother Hertridge has stolen most of his thunder and added a number of extra loud rumbles for good measure, thus completely blunting out "Social Credit" in the federal field. But Mr. Hertridge has made one tactical and very serious blunder, he failed to feature or even mention a basic dividend of $25, or maybe $15, a month for every voter in the Dominion. That little oversight is going to defeat Mr. Hertridge and his new party just as surely as it elected Mr. Aberhart and his new party four years ago in Alberta.

Where British Stands

There is more bite in Britain's foreign policy. Both Mr. Chamberlain and Lord Halifax have been at pains to let it be known just what Britain will and will not do in the event of certain acts taking place. Speaking on Thursday evening, the British foreign secretary reiterated the position. He outlined the great stride which had been made in British defence preparations and armaments and asserted that had been done in the country to meet any emergency that might arise. He said further, "...in the event of further aggression, we are resolved to use at once the whole of our strength in fulfilment of our pledges to resist it." If Herr Hitler chooses to start anything, it won't be because he hasn't been warned of the consequences, and it is unlikely that he would be willing to engage the whole strength of Britain and France.

Farmers Take From Losses With Resignation

Just what the feelings of all farmers who have suffered loss or partial loss of their crop through hail for years or for some years, is difficult to even imagine, but a great many have taken it on the chin for the past few years. They have worked diligently putting in their crops, cultivating their land and fighting the grasshopper menace—they have seen their crops push up through the ground from the seeds they have planted; watched it grow, some times right through to maturity only to see it cut down to the ground level by menacing storms.

One might be safe in stating that most of the affected farmers have taken their beating with more or less of a feeling of resignation or fatalism. But what kind of a vacation could be more desecrating. Losses sustained by some of the farmers have reduced them to circumstances of poverty, yet they are able to smile as they meet the disappointment of losing another year's income.

The type of courage possessed by the average farmer is an object lesson for others who are experiencing hard times during their trying years. It is easy to complain and relate our troubles, but the one who can keep his troubles to himself and face the world with a smile is a success in the real meaning of the word.

Opinions on Next War.

What will the next war be like? There are varying opinions. May it not be a war of impregnable entrenchments, which troops cannot penetrate, while air raids and propaganda destroy the morale and the ideals of civilian populations? May it not be possible since these ideals are only founded on custom (wealthy and all these customs may be) and upheld by a very small part of the world's population, which small part will be at bay, to destroy our present ideals and system of democracy through world-wide propaganda.

Those Who Make Errors

It is of being rigid about some trifling errors in his paper a fellow editor once wrote: "We'd be pleased to find a merchant or clerk who never or made a mistake in putting up an order, a lawyer who never lost a case through his own errors, a delivery boy who never left a parcel at the wrong house, a radio announcer who never mispronounced a word, a singer who never struck a false note, a postoffice

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

PICTURING OUTINGS

On an outing, watch for amusing incidents, interesting people. Avoid stiff, posed shots.

SUMMER picnics and outings are fun—and the fun can last, if you bring back a collection of snapshots that really tells the story of the day's activities.

Getting such snapshots isn't difficult when you keep your eyes open for incidents and details that truly explain the "what, where, and how" of the picnic.

Don't bother with stiff, posed group snapshots. Make "story" pictures. Get a shot of someone coming down the steps with a heavy picnic hamper... putting it in the car... a picture through the windshield showing the picnic grove as you arrive. Snap a series of shots which show the spreading of the cloth... the setting out of pickles, cake, and sandwiches... cutting the cake... "cleanup" of individuals munching away... sports or games after lunch... the girl friend getting her skirt caught on a barbed-wire fence. If the picnic lasts into the evening, take a time exposure of the group gathered around the campfire, singing or telling stories. They'll have to hold still for this one, and the camera must be firmly supported on a handy post or table—but it's a worthwhile picture.

When you make a series of "story-telling" snapshots along this line, you have something that gives far more satisfaction than a few stiff posed snapshots. And it's no trouble. Most of the pictures you "capture" when your subjects are "off-guard"—not even aware a picture is being taken. Other pictures may require a little posing, but as long as you make the picture show some incident, something going on, it won't have that stiff "posed" look.

Try making a series of related, "story-telling" snapshots on your next picnic or holiday outing. You'll quickly decide that's the way all your pictures will be taken on such occasions in the future.

CULTIVATION ON SUMMERFALLOW

Frequent rains have complicated ordinary processes, says Lethbridge Experimental Station.

The frequent rain storms of this season have greatly complicated the cultivation of fallows. Ordinarily the tractor is the best implement to use for the second operation on fallows if it will work satisfactorily. Its draft is lighter than other cultivating implements and if the soil conditions are right a good kill of weeds may be secured. When the soil is dry the rod weeder operates best when penetration is deep enough to get below the root crown of the stubble on ploughed fields. With wet soil however, it will be a matter of operating at the depth that will appear to give the best weed kill. This will mean some experimentation on the part of the farmer.

The duckfoot cultivator may be satisfactory and there again the conditions of the soil and weed growth must determine the depth.

Farmers who have large blade cultivators may find these very useful if the weeds become large, especially if the top soil is fairly dry. In using this implement at the station, it has been found that the shallower the blade penetrates the better the weed kill except for some types of perennials. Generally however it is necessary for the blade to go below the stubble crowns to operate successfully, especially in moist soil.

The one-way disc undoubtedly will be used for midsummer cultivation by many farmers. With the moist condition of the soil an endeavor may be made to turn the weeds under to improve a kill. If this is done the trash cover will be destroyed and the soil placed in a condition for drifting. In stead of using a one-way when the soil is wet it may be better to delay the cultivation until the top soil dries out even if the weeds become larger and some moisture is lost. With a dry top soil the weeds can be killed with a shallower one-way and more trash is left on the surface. At best however it is difficult to leave a trash where the one-way is used unless the weeds are large.

The plough will be used on more fields than usual this year because of the difficulty of destroying weeds in wet soil with other implements. If the plough is used subsequent cultivation should be such as to not pulverize the surface any more than is absolutely necessary.

The Poet's Corner

My Creed

I would be true, for there are those who trust me;

I would be pure, for there are those who care;

I would be strong, for there is much to suffer;

I would be brave, for there is much to dare;

I would be friend to all—the foe, the friend;

I would be giving and forget the gift;

I would be humble, for I know my weakness;

I would look up—and laugh—and love and lift.

VALUES

A crowded hall—sharp clangs of horns and cymbals,

A brilliant light—no pity—no control;

Loud laughs with tingling glasses mingle,

Gay life is here—but where Oh—WHERE IS SOUL!

A cottage room—where into few may enter,

Soft lights—sweet places—low strains of richest tone;

The heart—with food, crushed "mem. ories" centre,

Sweet Paradise—and "Soul Upon a throne!"

—By A. Maclelland, Bassano.

A cure has been found for hay fever. It is a serum extracted from ducks. Another quick remedy, no doubt.

Newly hatched silk worms are so small that 70,000 weigh only one pound; within forty-two days, the same 70,000 weigh 5,500 pounds.

There is an honor in business that is the fine gold of it; that reckons with every man justly that "loves light; that regards kindness and fairness more highly than goods or price or profits."

It becomes a man more than his furnishings or his home.

It speaks for him in the heart of everyone. His friendships are serene and secure.

Does it cost so much to have the shape of one's nose altered? asks a correspondent. If one consults the right person, it doesn't cost anything.

Your husband looks like a brilliant man said he as they sat together on the sofa, I suppose he known everything.

Don't be a fool, she replied, he doesn't even suspect anything.

OVER A CENTURY OF BANKING EXPERIENCE

Sir Samuel Cunard

Born in Halifax in 1797, Sir Samuel Cunard was the founder of the Canadian Steamship Line and the pioneer of regular ocean steam navigation. His wealth derived from the "ocean railway" he founded, it was invested, with some success, in ship building with the regularity of railways on land.

This device was evolved nearly 100 years ago—in 1820—with the formation of the "British and North American Mail Steam Packet Company". The next year, R.M.S. "Britannia" entered in Halifax, July 16th, 1840, completing her maiden voyage.
